Monstain Woman BY NIRMALA PUTUL A bundle of dried wood on her head, she comes down the hill Mountain woman will go straight to the bazaar and setting all her wood, will quench the fire of the entire family's hunger.

Hanging on her back, a child wrapped in a sheet Mountain woman, planting paddy planting her mountain of grief for a blossonning crop of happineas

Breaking apart the stones of the mountain, she's breaking mountainous rituals and taboos. Weaving mats on the mountains passing her mountainous young day She makes brooms weapons to fight fibh Piercing the knot of her hair with a flower She roos after the cows and goats, her feet macribe in the earth bonderds of her imbocent maskee songs CITEANSLATED FROM THE SANTHALL ORIGINAL BY ARUNA SITESH AND ARLENE ZIDE IN CONSULTATION WITH NIRMALA PUTUL)
